WILL BURN EVERY NIGHT

EPISCOPALS MAKE NEW RULING ON DIVORCEES

The electric light company has put the lights on the bridge on a separate circuit so that they can be burned all night whether the moon is shining or not. Heretofore the lights on the bridge have been turned off and on at the same time that the street lights were and the result was that there were times when the bridge was a pretty dark proposition, even tho it was supposed to be a moonlight night. However, the moonlight schedule on the bridge was no worse than it is in other parts of the city, and while it would cost a little more to have the lights burning every night, it would seem as if the change would be a good thing.

DEATH OF MRS. DRESSEN

Mrs. Phoebe Dressem died Wednesday at the home of her son at Seneca Corners after a long illness at the age of 77 years. Deceased was one of the pioneer residents of this section. Her husband preceded her in death about thirty years ago. She is survived by one son and two daughters, namely, Gus Dressem, Mrs. P. Lohmsach and Mrs. W. H. Bean. The funeral took place at Seneca Corners Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved relatives.

MAKING ENDS MEET

The wagon for which the coal dealer paid $110.00 fourteen years ago costs him nearly double that amount today.

Horses have gone way up in price—an increase of nearly 75 per cent. Harness costs 50 per cent more than it did. The price of feed is so uncertain that it isn't even counted in.

The teamster who delivers your coal gets almost twice the wages he did fourteen years ago.

Carrying bags, coal chutes and shovels all cost the dealer more money.

THINK PRODUCE EXHIBIT A GOOD PLAN

In view of the interest that is taken by local farmers in the produce exhibit that was held in this city last week at the Johnson & Hill store, several people have expressed the opinion that it would be a good thing to hold an exhibit in this city each year with prizes of sufficient value to induce farmers and others to bring in their garden truck and farm produce.

Last week Otto J. Lee was interviewed on the subject and he expressed it as his opinion that it would be a good thing in more ways than one. Mr. Lee stated that the committee who has in charge the state fair exhibit always have considerable difficulty in getting a good selection of grains and vegetables to take to the state fair, it being impossible to interest enough people in the matter so that there was any sort of selection to choose from.

He not only thought that the idea of an exhibit in this city would be a good thing, but carried that idea further and said that it should be held the week before the state fair, and after it was over, the best of the exhibits could be selected and taken down to Milwaukee, and by this method a much better display could be fixed up than had been possible under existing conditions. He added that had the committee had a chance to select their exhibit from the products that was brought in to the Johnson & Hill exhibit, that they could have made a much better showing than was possible with what they had at hand, and it was his opinion that Wood county could have carried off first prize.

It is not the idea to hold a county fair in this city, but merely to have an exhibit of farm produce. Those who have mentioned the matter are confident that people could be found in this city who would be willing to devote a part of their time to the work of preparing and attending to such an exhibit, which would be placed in the Armory hall. A small admission could be charged and the money that was taken in would be divided among the exhibitors.

While there would be no great amount of money for the exhibitors, there would probably be enough to pay them for bringing in the produce and the knowledge that a selection was to be made from this exhibit to the state fair would be an added incentive.

It is a matter that is worth taking into consideration by those interested in this matter, and there is no question but what it could be worked out to prove beneficial to all concerned. There is no question but that a good exhibit at the state fair is well worth the money expended by Wood county, as this is a part of the country that is often looked upon as being as entirely on the earth as an agricultural sector. We have already proven to our satisfaction that in the southern part of the state as being entirely on the earth as an agricultural sector. We have already proven to our satisfaction that such is not the case, and if we continue the good work there is no question but what it will bring good results.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

The Constitution of the United States doesn't mention health? Proscription against sanitary reform is that of health?

A book on "Exercise and Health" must be had for the asking from the U. S. Public Health Service?

Not everybody can achieve greatness but everybody can be clean?

If you sow a hygienic habit you reap health and attain longevity?

Railway cars would be sanitary if it weren't for the people in them?

The full dinner pail is the enemy of tuberculosis?

Attorney C. B. Edwards of Marshfield, democratic nominee for district attorney, was in the city on Monday calling on his friends. Mr. Edwards gave the boys a talk at the Wilson headquarters that evening.

Have you seen or heard the wonderful new phonograph, the Pathophone? This plays with a recording ball instead of a needle.

Requires no changing of needles, cannot scratch records and reproduces music as no other machine can.

Come in and hear it at Otto's Pharmacy. Prices $15 to $150.

DEMOCRATS WHO ARE RUNNING FOR OFFICE

It will be only a short time now when the people of Wood county will be called upon to elect men to fill the county offices, and while we do not want anybody to desert any of the principles that they espoused in their early youth, and have since stood by without any question, still we do think that any of them may cast a vote for the democratic nominees without straining their conscience to any great extent, and that they are doing what they can to put their feet in the right direction.

For District Attorney:

For district attorney the democrats have nominated Clarence H. Edwards of Marshfield. Up to the north end of the county they know all about Mr. Edwards, for he has lived up there during the past sixteen years, during which time he has practiced law. We do not consider that we are exaggerating when we say that Mr. Edwards is as clean a man as there is in Wood county. He is a man who has gone about his daily work in a manner that has endeared him to a large portion of the people of his city, and it would seem that there were enough recommendation for any man. There is no question but what you will be doing your best to elect an able and conscientious man to office when you vote for Mr. Edwards.

Register of Deeds:

It seems a trifle foolish to say anything in favor of John Hoffman for Register of Deeds for almost everybody knows John and knows that he is a good man for the place. He has held the office one term and as he has made as good an officer as the county has ever had. John was originally a resident of Marshfield, where he lived for many years and where he has friends by the hundreds. Mr. Hoffman is not a politician in any sense of the word, altho he did hold the office of mayor of Marshfield for several years, and he gave them a great deal of service. We are not a bit ashamed to ask you to vote for Mr. Hoffman, and you need have no fear but what you will be doing your best to put a good man into office.

For Sheriff:

Fred Beell of Marshfield is the man that the democrats have picked for sheriff, and we have not heard anybody say that he will not make a good man for the office. It is indeed a new arrival that has not heard of Fred Beell in Wood county, and most people know as much about him as we could tell them. He is a man who has led an exemplary life and has been a resident of Wood county all his life. Nobody can accuse him of being a politician or an office seeker, and this is the first time that he has allowed his name to be used in this connection, altho he has been urged to do so to make the run for sheriff. His friends, feeling that he would make an exceptionally good officer, and they feel now that he will not be a disappointment if he is elected.

Clerk of Court:

Charles Kraskie, the nominee for clerk of the circuit court, is a resident of Port Edwards, where he is employed by the Nelson-Edwards Paper company, altho he was born and reared in Grand Rapids and graduated from our public schools.

This is his first entry into the political arena, but he is a bright young man and well qualified to fill the office to which he has been nominated.

There is no question but that a good exhibit at the state fair is well worth the money expended by Wood county, as this is a part of the country that is often looked upon as being as entirely on the earth as an agricultural sector. We have already proven to our satisfaction that such is not the case, and if we continue the good work there is no question but what it will bring good results.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Railway cars would be sanitary if it weren't for the people in them?

The full dinner pail is the enemy of tuberculosis?

Member of Assembly:

Lambert Mickels, the man who has been selected for member of assembly, is one of the old residents of Wood county. He came to the Bakerville country in the early days and by hard work and persistent industry helped himself out a farm in that then heavily wooded country. He raised his family on the farm and is known up in the north end of the county as one of the men who can be depended upon at all times to do the thing that is best for his fellow man. Just the sort of a fellow for assemblyman. We have sent lots of lawyers down to Madison, and the complaint for a number of years past is that the lawyers have been running the country. Why not send one of our good, reliable farmers, a man who has the interests of the community at heart, down there and see what he will do in the law-making line? You certainly cannot make a mistake if you vote for Mr. Mickels.

County Clerk:

Wm. T. Nobles, the man nominated for county clerk, has served one term in that capacity and is ready to stand upon his record for re-election. Mr. Nobles is a graduate of our high school and subsequently graduated from law school, and is a young man who is well qualified to perform the duties of county clerk. We bespeak for Mr. Nobles the support of the public in his run for the office.

County Treasurer:

Joseph Wheeler, Jr., who is at least well known in the southern end of the county, is the man who has been selected to guard the money up at the court house. Joe has been city treasurer for a number of years, and he has done so well in that capacity that the democrats thought that he would be a good man for the county job. Mr. Wheeler was born and reared in Grand Rapids and has the confidence of the people in this city, and if you want to know about a man, the place to go is at his home town. Nobody questions but what he will make a good officer, as good, in fact, as the county has ever had, and there need be no timidity about voting for him, as he has been before the public before and has never failed to make good. We have no hesitancy in recommending Mr. Wheeler to the voters of Wood county for the office of county treasurer.

SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR LOSS OF EYE

Marsfield Herald: Joe Bening, who is in the employ of the city as stoker at the electric light plant, had the misfortune last Friday to lose the sight of his right eye by reason of a hot cinder getting into it. The city, for the protection of its laborers, under the compensation law, carries liability insurance covering all its employees. Monday of this week Judge Hugo Wegener, as agent for the Guardian Casualty and Guaranty Company of Salt Lake City, Utah, in which the city carried a policy, received a check of $600 in settlement for the injury sustained by Mr. Bening.

For District Attorney:

A Mr. Sterling, who represents an eastern company, met with a number of our business men on Monday evening for the purpose of explaining to them the matter of establishing a match factory in this city. Mr. Sterling represents an eastern company and has been in the city for several days past, and there are several of our local capitalists who are apparently quite interested in the matter.

The proposition is to build a $300,000 factory in this city which will be used both for the manufacture of matches and match making machinery.

Our citizens are asked to subscribe for $75,000 worth of the preferred stock which it is proposed to put up inside of two years.

It is claimed that the company has a match making machine that is an improvement over that used by any other company, and that it is different from those of other makers, and this is the reason for wanting to make the machines as well as matches.

The proposal is to make this point a central or parent company and subsequently branch out into other localities.

At the meeting held on Monday evening the plans of the company were explained and some idea given as to what the business amounted to.

It was stated that the company would employ from one hundred to one hundred and fifty men, and that eventually there would be a total of four hundred and fifty employed.

The plan admitted by all present that the establishment of such a factory would be a good thing for the city and community at large, and there was no question but what all of those present were rather in favor of the proposition, but the amount of money necessary to swing the proposition made it apparent that the men of the community would have to go into it and not leave it to the small business men of the city to carry thru.

With a view to discovering the sentiment of the business men and others of the community about the matter, a committee consisting of Jos. Cohen, Guy Nash and A. L. Arpin was appointed to look into the matter and make a report at a future meeting.

As a community we do not know much about matches, but Mr. Sterling seemed to have the subject well in hand and to know what he was talking about and inspired his hearers with considerable confidence. Among other things he made the statement that he could contract for the entire output of the factory before it was finished, which is an item to be considered in a matter of this kind.

It was admitted by all present that the plan proposed by Mr. Gross was to secure ornamental brackets to fasten to the side of the poles, and when this was done to go over the city and make a general cleanup of the poles now in use, taking out crooked ones and replacing them with fine straight poles, making them all of one height, taking out the wires that cross the streets in every direction, and having the poles spaced a regular interval so that the light would be uniform in distance all over the city. Then the poles would be painted so as to be an unobtrusive as possible, and kept in condition with proper care at all times.

Mr. Allen thought that a system like this could be installed for about $4,000 which, at night, would appear just as well if not better than the entire system was changed over to underground wires and metal posts and which in the daytime, on account of the cleaning up done, would also be a great improvement over the present system.

Some of the aldermen who have been interviewed since the meeting express themselves as being in favor of adopting the new plan, and there is no question that it would make a great improvement in the appearance of the city.

Americans are not ungrateful; they recognize the thousands of difficulties that no man could foresee which you have encountered and mastered. Their verdict is already written; it has been agreed upon at the firesides of the land and has been molded in the school-houses, the places of worship and wherever Americans meet to talk over the affairs and good of their country. That verdict leaps forth from almost every American in undying gratitude to you for the service you have rendered for the peace, prosperity and happiness your leadership has given and I bid you this day the overwhelming wish of Americans everywhere for your continued reelection. U. S. Senator Gillette James, in speech notifying President Wilson of his second nomination for President by the democratic party.

The methods adopted in the legislature during the last two years have been shown up in no uncertain light, as Mr. Phillips will know on election day. The voters of this state have heard Hurt Williams and other democratic candidates make statements about the manner in which state affairs have been conducted at Madison for the last two years—statements that are startling, but Gov. Phillips has been content to go around the state making eulogistic speeches on the welfare of the farmers and rural schools, those of good roads to the communities—making speeches on every topic but that which concerns his administration for the last two years.

Mr. Hughes, after considerable prodding around, has at last discovered an issue. It is the eight-hour law. It took considerable time and a whole lot of abuse before he stumbled onto something that could be really considered an issue, but at last he hit it. It does not look as if it was going to do him any good, but a man who is ranting around over the United States telling the voters why they should vote for him, must have something to base his argument on. However, the tendency of the times is toward an eight-hour day and the head of his constituents are all in favor of it, so that it is doubtful if Hurt will be able to swing many votes his way on this kind of an argument.

Even the friends of Mr. Hughes admit that had he maintained a dignified silence after his nomination he would have polled more votes than he would at the present time, which would indicate that he is not cutting much of a slash on his speech-making tour.

POLITICS AND WAR

"I have been in every capital in Europe except Petrograd and on every battle front," says W. G. Shepard, the great war correspondent. "I have seen the horrors of war and the results of war, the misery and the horrors, the misery and the horrors of the wrecks caused by war. I have seen the efforts of the Allies to draw the United States into war with Germany to draw us into war with England. There were times over there when we held our breath lest the United States be dragged into the struggle, and war seemed the only way out."

"But always sane, sound, steady, the United States came through. It was a magnificent thing to see from our point of vantage in Europe. It made one thrill to realize that the United States was his own country. Now, when I return home, I find an election campaign under way, and all concerned may appear and contest the principles of my party. I am willing to fight it out, and if need be, I will do it with honor. We, in the European capitals, who saw our government escape the war traps, felt no loss of honor. We were always able to tell the other follow in Europe and to the world that we had won the war.

"We were proud of American sanity and of American statesmanship and that cool, calm reckoning of the American people which prevented them from being stampeded.

"It was a fine thrilling thing to be an American in European capitals and to know that in our own capital at Washington there were men as shrewd and as far-sighted as any of the statesmen of Europe; to know, also, that the statesmen in Washington were stodger, savor, less influenced by hate and bitterness and better able to judge right and wrong than the wisest statesmen in Europe."

"And come home to the attempt to thrust from the guidance of America the government which had aided the U. S. thru this maze of diplomacy and machination is, to one who has witnessed affairs from the European end, little short of terrifying."

"Certainly the steadfastness of our government is as important to us as the steadfastness of their government to Germans or Britons; our danger is as great, if not so imminent and apparent as theirs. The certain grasp of our present government on war affairs is an important to us as the grasp of Von Bismarck-Hollweg on Aquith is to Germany or England."

LA FOLLETTE ON THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, the only republican son to vote for the eight-hour law. In a signed editorial in the September issue of the magazine, defends the passage of the above law and endorses the opinions of President Wilson's speech at Shadow Lawn Saturday the 23rd.

Says the Senator:

The eight-hour law is not a force. The railway employees demanded an eight-hour day from the railroads. They made no demand on Congress. As was their right, they set a day to quit work in case their demand was refused. Then the railroads inaugurated a strike against the public. They refused to accept freight for shipment, especially perishable goods in any part of the country. They spent tremendous sums of money in an effort to influence public sentiment and this money must eventually come out of the pockets of the people. The strike meant appalling disaster to farmers, to fruit growers, great damage to all business, including the railroads.

"The President was not successful in averting the disaster, the railroad managers being particularly obstinate and refusing to concede the principle of the eight-hour day. The President sent the matter up to Congress and Congress, considering only the public good acted in the public interest. It was not forced by any demands of the workingmen or of the railroads. The public interest demanded immediate action, and Congress acted and passed the law. Every Wisconsin representative present voted for the bill, and I believe they were right in doing so. I believe in the eight-hour day.

"Did Congress act without due consideration? The question of the eight-hour day for skilled labor was not new. Every congressman alive to the issues of the day must have been familiar with the subject. "When the sixteen-hour limitation for railroad employees was considered it was made against the eight-hour law. Railroads and some other large employers are slow to learn, but experience has abundantly shown that for the trades, professions and crafts where skill, courage and caution are required the eight-hour day is the maximum of efficiency."

Burt Williams, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was born at Berlin, Wis., and received his primary education in the country schools surrounding that city. He afterwards graduated from the High School at Berlin, and takes pride in the fact that the Wisconsin public schools were his only educational opportunity and training. Shortly afterwards he entered the newspaper field and eventually became publisher of the Ashland Daily News.

THE CHILD LABOR LAW

Chairman Wilcox of the Republican National Campaign Committee says that the Child Labor Law recently passed by the Wilson administration has a joker in it which renders it of no service and a fraudulent bill. Candidate Hughes himself has said that the children of the nation have not been emancipated by this law and repeatedly has sought to be little and discredit it.

However, Owen R. Lovejoy, general secretary of the National Child Labor Committee, in a published letter emphatically protests against such criticisms and says that the bill was carefully drawn and thoroughly considered. It was not jammed thru congress, but passed after long debate for three years. Both democrats and republicans were well represented on the senate committee that considered it in its final form and both democrats and republicans stood solidly for it in this form. Only two republicans, Oliver and Penrose, voted against it. The thirty-day clause was necessary because without it a manufacturer who once employed child labor would be disbarred forever from interstate commerce. He concludes his letter thus:

"The Federal Child Labor Law was framed by the best constitutional lawyers in the country; it was passed by a congress that had given it close attention."

Senator Albert B. Cummings, representative of Iowa, asserted that the allegation of there being a joker in this law was without any foundation and that the bill was "either incomplete or incorporated." He states further that the Child Labor Law is certain to "effectuate the humane purposes towards which the friends of Child Labor Legislation have for a long time been striving." Senator Cummings has long been an ardent advocate of Child Labor legislation.

The Chicago Herald, an independent paper, commenting on this law, said the statement of the National Child Labor Committee carried more conviction than the picking of a flaw during campaign time. That this committee was responsible for the law and assured the public that the law was not jammed thru congress and was framed by good constitutional lawyers and considered carefully for three years before passage. These non-political, republican, and independent statements most effectively dispose of any campaign claim that the Child Labor Law was not wisely, honestly and thoroughly drawn and passed.

FEEDING DAIRY COWS

One of the most common mistakes in the feeding of dairy cows on the farm is that the good cows are not given a sufficient quantity of feed above that required for their physical maintenance to obtain the maximum quantity of milk they are capable of producing. Successful feeding of dairy cows involves the providing of an abundant supply of palatable, nutritious feed at a minimum cost and feeding in such a way as to receive the largest milk production from the feed consumed. Feeding for profit is defined as liberal feeding, or feeding to the full capacity of the cow, in a new Farmers' Bulletin of the department, No. 743, The Feeding of Dairy Cows, which discusses many of the factors involved in economical feeding.

From the standpoint of economical milk production, a dairy cow generally should not be fed more than she will consume without gaining in weight. There are times, however, according to the bulletin, when it is desirable to make exceptions to this rule. Practically all heavy milk producers lose weight in the early part of their lactation period; that is, they produce milk at the expense of their body flesh. When such cows approach the end of their milking period they normally regain the flesh they have lost, and the farmer can well afford to feed them liberally, with good feed, good hay, and good water, until they are again fresh.

Pasture is the natural feed for cows, and for average conditions, with ample pasture of good grasses or legumes in good, succulent condition, good production can be secured.

The cost of land is a factor in the economy of using pasture, however, if pastures are dependent upon entirely for four to six months of the year, and production is kept up to a profitable standard, anywhere from 1 to 4 acres or more must be provided for each cow, says the bulletin.

This is assuming that a permanent pasture is of good clean turf, with few waste places, or that a temporary pasture has a good stand of grass or legumes throughout. Land that will provide such pastures frequently is

FARMERS IN AUTOMOBILES

Modern improvements and modern progress, says the Philadelphia Press, have annihilated time and space and have reduced caste to nothingness. Nowhere is the matter of speed and destruction or distance noted more than among the farmers. The farmer today is merely a suburban dweller. He may be twenty miles from the city, but he is simply a fellow on the outskirts. This is due to the automobile. With his machine the farmer can skip into the city, make his purchases and skip back to the farm in less time than it would take his father to walk to the village once a week.

To understand fully the impress that the automobile has made on the routine and existence of the farmer it is only necessary to know that in Pennsylvania there is an automobile on every tenth farm. This means that while nine of the ten farmers are autoless, the tenth fellow can ride in his gasoline vehicle as readily as his brother in the cities.

Nature herself gives a great advantage to traffic facilities to the farmer. He has his own motive power and suits his own convenience as to start, travel and return. And when you add to this automobile ownership the trolley cars that stripe the hills and valleys of the farming district it is easy to understand that a trip to the city has lost its epochal character to the farmer; the event of twenty years ago has become the commonplace of today.

To simmer this ownership of automobiles down to statistics, it might be said that slightly more than fourteen per cent of the automobiles in New York state are owned by farmers. In plain figures, there were 22,608 automobiles owned on the farms of Pennsylvania last year. In the richer of the agrarian counties of the state the large number of automobiles owned by the farmers rank respectfully with those owned by the business men. There is in Lancaster county, with eighteen per cent of the farmers owning 1,842 automobiles, and Chester, with its 1,019 cars, not to slight Bucks county, with 956 machines for its farmers.—New York Herald.

The use of the automobile has increased. The use of the bicycle has decreased. The use of the horse has decreased. The use of the mule has decreased. The use of the pony has decreased. The use of the dog has decreased. The use of the cat has decreased. The use of the mouse has decreased. The use of the bird has decreased. The use of the insect has decreased. THOMAS H. RYAN

CUDAHY REVELATION TO BADGER VOTERS

John Cudahy, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, since he entered the campaign a few weeks ago, has shown surprising strength not only among the Democratic voters of the state, but among the adherents of other parties. In the various counties where he has delivered a number of addresses, he has been warmly received, and in the many places where there is a strong leaning towards Wilson and the entire Democratic ticket, Cudahy has given enthusiastic receptions.

The caliber of this comparatively young man was not known, to a certain extent, even to his admirers, as he had always positively refused to become identified in any way with politics. Even after he was nominated for lieutenant governor, his staunchest friends, while realizing his sterling worth, intellectual ability and the wonderful record that he has made in the legal profession, within a short time, together with the reputation he has for sound judgment in every thing with which he had to do, never dreamed that he would prove such a tower of strength by the clearness and the force of his arguments on both national and state issues. His knowledge of the entire political situation has amazed all those who have heard him discuss the important questions now before the voters of the country, and his eloquence and fearlessness in dilating on these issues have won him many admirers and adherents even from the parties not in sympathy, to a certain extent, with the Democratic administration.

Born January 21, 1867, in the town of Buchanan, Outagamie county, he attended district schools in that town. Later he entered Ryan high school at Appleton in September, 1884, and was graduated from that institution June, 1887. He then entered the University of Wisconsin in the fall of 1887, and was graduated from there June 16, 1891. He entered the law school of the university in the fall of 1891, finishing June 17, 1892. After leaving school he located in Appleton July 5, 1892. During the years of 1897, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1906 and 1907, he was city attorney of Appleton, which position he filled until 1907, when he was elected to the position of Municipal Judge for four years, being the first Municipal judge of Outagamie county. He was reelected without any opposition in 1911 for another term of four years. At the expiration of his term in 1915, he refused again to be a candidate, having decided to enter the law firm of Ryan, Cary & Frank in the city of Appleton.

For its candidate as attorney-general, the Democratic party has selected one of the most prominent and capable attorneys in the state, whose legal record is such that no question as to his fitness for office can be raised upon that score.

Thomas Henry Ryan of Appleton is known throughout the legal fraternity of Wisconsin as an attorney of high character, exceptional ability and polished eloquence. His training has been all that one could desire.

Born January 21, 1867, in the town of Buchanan, Outagamie county, he attended district schools in that town. Later he entered Ryan high school at Appleton in September, 1884, and was graduated from that institution June, 1887. He then entered the University of Wisconsin in the fall of 1887, and was graduated from there June 16, 1891. He entered the law school of the university in the fall of 1891, finishing June 17, 1892. After leaving school he located in Appleton July 5, 1892. During the years of 1897, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1906 and 1907, he was city attorney of Appleton, which position he filled until 1907, when he was elected to the position of Municipal Judge for four years, being the first Municipal judge of Outagamie county. He was reelected without any opposition in 1911 for another term of four years. At the expiration of his term in 1915, he refused again to be a candidate, having decided to enter the law firm of Ryan, Cary & Frank in the city of Appleton.

Basis of Prosperity in Common Schools

"The basis of both prosperity and Democracy lies in our common schools. The Democratic party charges the present administration with bad faith in reference to our educational system. Fair promises have been constantly made for the improvement of the schools of the people and especially the rural schools, but these promises have not been kept or else fragmentary and inefficient legislation has been enacted as a sop to public opinion. Nothing can be expected in the way of a popular education widely diffused over the state, reaching every farm and every factory with the Republican party in control. Its professed interest is in a higher education in privately endowed institutions unrelated to the providing social problems of the day. It would solve the financial control and finance the great educational interests of the state. Special privilege would be enfranchised in our educational system, outing the very vital elements of our democracy. Whatever it has stood for in the past, nothing can be expected from the reactionary Republican party now seeking office in this state. We, the party of the whole people, pledge ourselves to work unceasingly to the end that education will be offered to every boy and girl in the state, whether poor or rich, whether in the crowded sections of our cities or among the scattered population of our country districts. We pledge our every effort to the end that the movement for democratic education in the university and the normal schools began several years ago, but temporarily halted by the present administration, shall be pushed rapidly forward and that everything shall be done to make these institutions supported by the taxes of the working people of the state, extend their benefits to all the people of this state. We pledge that these institutions shall not bar the worthy boy or girl and the ambitious man or woman from participation in their benefits and that there shall be a short course, personal instruction, traveling teachers, fair entrance requirements and credits, be made the servants of the people by opening up their resources to all the people."

"We pledge ourselves to restore and to emphasize the democratic character of our educational system."—From the Democratic State Platform.

VINTAGE-FORGED RHUBARB
MAKES PLEASING DESERT

Did you ever "feel the rhubarb?" When properly done it means delicious sauce and pie during the winter. Literally, "feeling the rhubarb" consists of freezing the roots thoroughly and then exposing them to a mild temperature, in imitation of the balmy days of spring succeeding winter's cold embrace. The plant will furnish succulent dishes for the snow bound family.

The method is a simple one. J. R. Hepler, Instructor in gardening at the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, advises as follows: regarding winter forcing of rhubarb:

"Dig the roots carefully just before the ground freezes. Handle the plants in a way to prevent injury. Then place them in a box outdoors where they may be left until frozen solid. Don't put them on the ground before they may freeze fast to it."

"After the roots are well frozen, take them to a warm cellar where the temperature averages 50 degrees Fahrenheit or more. Set in a bin or box, close together as possible, and cover with about four inches of soil. Rhubarb should be grown in as dark a corner of the cellar as possible. In about three weeks the shoots will appear.

As a rule the roots will bear plentifully for a period of from eight to ten weeks. Half a dozen vigorous roots will provide enough rhubarb for an average sized family."

HOW BOYS WOULD BE KEPT ON THE FARM

A Colorado farm boy has offered these suggestions to parents who want to keep their boys and girls on the farm:

"Get good books, magazines and farm papers for the young people to read.

"Have some kind of club for them to attend.

"Arrange meetings so they can have a party or entertainment once in a while.

"Go with them to church every Sunday.

"Arrange it so they can have one or more picnics every year.

"Teach them to do all kinds of farm work by giving them a small tract of land for themselves and showing them how to raise their crops, and have them help you with your work.

"Give them a horse which they can ride or drive when they haven't anything to do or when they want to go anywhere.

"Teach them to love an animal to animals.

"Presumptions as it may seem for a lad to advise his elders as to the best ways of solving one of the hardest problems, there is no small amount of helpful common sense in the ideas of this boy who at home and in school has had a chance to see the ways of bettering country living.

This action of the town will enable the properties to use about $5,000, including town, county, state and federal highway funds, including also several donations. The work will be commenced and completed next spring, and it is estimated that about three or four miles of good road will be completed. ### Madam—Is Your Underwear Form-Fitting or Straight Lines?

The other—Athena Underwear—tailored into shape by the maker. The slanting downward of the shoulder and sleeves shapes the garment to the contours of the wearer. Full bust and tapering back.

SEVEN SPECIAL FEATURES ASK TO SEE THEM

PATENTED SEAT—Most notable improvement ever made in underwear designing, so shaped that it clings to the figure in any position.

CURVED-CUT ARMHOLE—Brings the garment snugly to the body, without unnecessary cloth, causing uncomfortable perspiration and tearing the armhole of one's best frock.

EXTRA ELASTIC CUFF—Holds the sleeve in place and keeps it from slipping up on the arm.

ATHENA LOW-NECK SLEEVELESS GARMENT is narrowed at back, with extrafull bust—lower in front than at back. No slipping of shoulder-straps down over arms.

CUDAHY REVELATION TO BADGER VOTERS

John Cudahy, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, since he entered the campaign a few weeks ago has shown surprising strength not only among the Democratic voters of the state, but among the adherents of other parties. In the various counties where he has delivered a number of addresses, he has been warmly received, and in the many places where there is a strong leaning towards Wilson and the entire Democratic ticket, Cudahy has been given enthusiastic receptions.

The caliber of this comparatively young man was not known, to a certain extent, even to his admirers, as he had always positively refused to become identified in any way with politics. Even after he was nominated for lieutenant governor, his staunch friends, while realizing his sterling worth, intelligent ability and the wonderful record that he has made in the legal profession, within a short time, together with the reputation he had for sound judgment in everything with which he would prove such a power of strength by the clearness and the force of his arguments on both national and state issues. His knowledge of the entire political situation has amazed all those who have heard him discuss the important questions now before the voters of the country, and his eloquence and frankness in dilating on these issues have won him many admirers and adherents from the parties not in sympathy, to a certain extent, with the Democratic administration.

Born January 21, 1867, in the town of Buchanan, Outagamie County, he attended district schools in that town. Later he entered Ryan high school at Appleton in September, 1884, and was graduated from that institution June, 1887. He then entered the University of Wisconsin in the fall of 1887, and was graduated from there June 10, 1891. He entered the law school of the university in the fall of 1891, finishing June 17, 1892. After leaving school he located in Appleton July 5, 1892. During the years of 1897, 1898, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1906 and 1907, he was city attorney of Appleton, which position he filled until 1907, when he was elected to the position of Municipal Judge for four years, being the first Municipal Judge of Outagamie county. He was re-elected without any opposition in 1911 for another term of four years. At the expiration of his term in 1915, he returned again to be a candidate, having decided to enter the law firm of Ryan, Cacy & Frank in the city of Appleton.

Basis of Prosperity in Common Schools

"The basis of both prosperity and Democracy lies in our common schools. The Democratic party charges the present administration with bad faith in reference to our educational system. Fair promises have been constantly made for the improvement of the schools of the people and especially the rural schools, but these promises have not been kept or else fragmentary and insufficient legislation has been enacted as a sop to public opinion. Nothing can be expected in the way of a popular education widely diffused over the state, reaching every farm and every factory with the Republican party in control. Its professed interest is in a higher education in privately endowed institutions unrelated to the pressing social problems of the day. It would have millionaire's control and finance the great educational interests of the state. Special privilege would be entrenched in our education system, cutting out the very vital of our democracy. Whatever it has stood for in the past, nothing can be expected from the reactionary Republican party now seeking office in this state. We, the party of the whole people, pledge ourselves to work unceasingly to the end that education will be offered to every boy and girl in the state, whether poor or rich, whether in the crowded sections of our cities or among the scattered population of our country districts. We pledge our every effort to the end that the movement for democratic education in the university and the normal schools began several years ago, but temporarily halted by the present administration, shall be pushed rapidly forward and that everything shall be done to make these institutions, supported by the taxes of the working people of the state, extend their benefits to all the people of this state. We pledge that these institutions shall not bar the worthy boy or girl and the ambitious man or woman from participation in their benefits and that there shall be short course, personal instruction, traveling teachers, fair entrance requirements and credits, be made the servants of the people by opening up their resources to all the people."

Editor Tells How D. D. D. Cured His Eczema

Clergyman and Banker Also Write

H. G. Petrikiss, Editor Echo, Prophet, says he has been a sufferer of eczema for 20 years. Now I am completely healed, after 4 bottles of D. D. D. I have seen many physicians, but never have seen one own doctor cured of his itch, which he could not cure himself.

M. T. Teasor, Banker, Hopkins, Ia., I treated with three doctors for six months. They told me I was incurable. Now I am completely healed, after 4 bottles of D. D. D. My face is as smooth as a baby's. Now I am a better man than ever. For three years I suffered intensely, yet I have not found anyone completely cured. I have no hesitancy in acknowledging the great virtue of this great product.

Physicians are glad to recommend this soothing, cooling liquid—25c, 50c and $1.00. Come to me with your trouble. I will give you a sample. Your money back if the first bottle does not relieve you. D. D. D. keeps your skin healthy. Ask about it.

WINTER-FORCED RHUBARB

MAKES PLEASING DESERT

Did you ever "fool the rhubarb"? When properly done it means delicious sauce and pie during the winter. Literally "fooling the rhubarb" consists of freezing the roots thoroughly and then exposing them to a mild temperature in imitation of the balmy days of spring succeeding winter's cold embrace. The plant will furnish succulent dishes for the snow bound family.

The method is a simple one. J. R. Hepler, instructor in gardening at the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin advises as follows regarding winter forcing of rhubarb:

"Dig the roots carefully just so before the ground freezes. Handle the plants in every way to prevent injury. Then place them in a bin or box, as close together as possible and cover with about four inches of soil. Rhubarb should be grown in as dark a corner of the cellar as possible. In about three weeks the shoots will appear."

After the roots are well frozen, take them to a warm cellar where the temperature averages 50 degrees Fahrenheit or more. Set in a bin or box, as close together as possible and cover with about four inches of soil. Rhubarb should be grown in as dark a corner of the cellar as possible. In about three weeks the shoots will appear.

As a rule the roots will bear plentifully for a period of from eight to ten weeks. Half a dozen vigorous roots will provide enough rhubarb for an average sized family."

HOW BOYS WOULD BE KIPPED ON THE FARM

A Colorado farm boy has offered these suggestions to parents who want to keep their boys and girls on the farm:

Get good books, magazines and farm papers for the young people to read.

Have some kind of club for them to attend.

Arrange matters so they can have a party or entertainment once in a while.

Go with them to church every Sunday.

Arrange it so they can have one or more picnics every year.

Teach them to do all kinds of farm work by giving them a small tract of land for themselves and showing them how to raise their crops, and have them help you with your work.

Take them a horse which they can ride or drive when they haven't anything to do or when they want to go anywhere.

Teach them to love an animal to animals.

After they finish their school send them to the state agricultural schools.

Take time to teach them the "hows and whys of farm work."

Presumptuous as it may seem, for a lad to advise his elders as to the best ways of solving one of the hardest problems there is no small amount of helpful common sense in the ideas of this boy who at home and in school has had a chance to ways of bettering country living.

CURVED-CUT ARMHOLE—Brings the garment snugly to the body, without unnecessary cloth, causing uncomfortable perspiration and tearing the armhole of one's best frock.

EXTRA FLAT CUFF—Holds the sleeve in place and keeps it from slipping up on the arm.
